

1. War prehistory

1a. Servius Tullius	1b. Theodoric
1.1. Last king dying in regal Rome [174]	1.1. Last emperor of Western Third Empire dying in 526 A.D. when Italian anarchy started (see above)
1.2. Created church rights, established estates and electoral qualification ([174], Bk. 1, 42, 48)	1.2. Very flexible internal policy (see above). Founded kingdom of Ostrogoths, encouraged science and arts, gave foreigners equal rights as Romans, deported peoples (see [44], [146] and engaged in similar activity as Caracalla, Theodoric's analogue in Second Empire)
1.3. According to formula $X + 300$, died in 518 A.D. (ibid.)	1.3. Died in 526 A.D. (see above)

To 1.3: The difference of 8 years is precisely that between the duration of regal Rome and the Third Empire (see above).

2a. Tarquins coming to power after Servius Tullius' death. Tullia (and Lucretia)	2b. Goths (Amals) coming to power. Amalasantha (and Matesuentha)
2.1. Power passed to Servius Tullius' daughter Tullia and her "husband" Tarquinius the Proud ([174], Bk. 1, 48, 49)	2.1. Power passed to Theodoric's daughter Amalasantha and dynasty of Goths (Amals) (Tarquins' analogue) [109], [44]
2.2. Large group of "Tarquins" around Tullia (Tarquinius the Proud among them) (ibid.)	2.2. Support of numerous "Goths" for Amalasantha. Closed clan as well as "Tarquins" (ibid.)
2.3. Very close names: Tullia and Julia	2.3. Due to isomorphism of Second and Third Empires, Amalasantha overlaps with Julia Maesa (see above)
2.4. Tarquins ruled for 25 years from Servius Tullius' death to fall of Tarquinius the Proud (ibid.)	2.4. Goths ruled for 26 years from Theodoric's death to Goths' defeat in 552 A.D. Very close figures: 25 and 26 years
2.5. Tarquinius the Elder, probably descendant of Tarquinius the Proud, also newcomer to regal Rome (see above and ibid.)	2.5. Arrival of Goths and of Barbarians (see above). Regarded as strange element in Italy (at least, according to Procopius' description, whose account is used) [109], [44]